

Ancient Issues Relevant to Modern Times (History of Thought and Economic Theories)

Lecturer: Alessandro Roncaglia (La Sapienza University of Rome)

Objective: The course is made of a group of two seminars, aiming at providing PhD students with an appraisal of the basic concepts utilised by contending views of the economy relevant for dealing with any specific issue, such as the agricultural sector and related policy issues. In particular, the course will compare different notions of value, the market, price, competition and market forms, and uncertainty within the Classical, marginalist and Keynesian approaches.

Program: The program is organised in 2 seminars of 3 and 2 hours respectively.

Exam: no exam

CFU: 2

Language: Italian

Teaching method: Lectures and discussions

Period: Spring 2025